DNA evidence

Cold case suspect charged in two 1989 murders

After 25 years, two long-standing cold cases may have been closed by the Philadelphia Police Department's Homicide Unit.

Police on Wednesday arrested Rudolph Churchill, 51, on charges of two 1989 murders after identifying the suspect through DNA testing.

Churchill was identified by the Combined DNA Index System (CODIS), which matched DNA from the 1989 crime scenes to an offender in Georgia, who also had an address in New Jersey.

The two murders occurred over two months in 1989.

On March 17, 1989, officers responded to a rape in progress at 15th and Thompson streets. Officers reportedly were directed to an Oldsmobile with a woman lying on the rear floor of the car.

The body was identified as Ruby Ellis, 19, with the cause of death determined to be ligature strangulation and beating.

Five weeks later, on April 23, 1989, officers received a report of a body inside a bar on the 1200 block of West Girard Avenue. Police found a bar that reportedly had been vacant. There, officers found a decomposed female corpse. The victim had a shoe string tied around her neck and a sock stuffed in her mouth.

That victim was identified as Cheryl Hanible, 33. Again, the cause of death was determined to be ligature strangulation and beating. METRO

Philly farmers ready for spring

Harvest. Today marks the first day of spring, and local farmers and gardeners are already pumped.

Amanda Staples was outside on Wednesday planting peas.

"I always try to plant them around this time of year, sometimes I try for earlier," said Staples, of Germantown Kitchen Garden. "The soil is really cold and it's making my hands hurt, but it's got to get done."

Staples, who bought the half-acre lot in East Germantown that she and her husband turned into an urban farm four years ago, said that this year, they are going to just run a farmstand, rather than a full CSA program.

"When you only have a really small space, there's only so many CSA shares you can do, because every single share needs to include the same amount of vegetables," Staples said. "On paper, a farmstand can be more lucrative."

While urban farming is usually taken up by people who are passionate about nature, it's still a business.

"CSA sign-ups are now underway, that's the big focus right now," said Dylan Baird, of PhillyFoodWorks.

Baird, who last season was farming his own crops and distributing farm-share boxes throughout the city, is now outsourcing with the help of Amish farmers in Lancaster County.

The Urban Tree Connection, which used legal conservatorships to take ownership of vacant lots around West Philly that are now blooming with plants, is expanding its operation this year, and sent several of their farmers to a "tractor training" at Heritage Farm this week.

They're expanding their kids programs, but also trying to produce more crops to hopefully sell, said founder Skip Wiener.

"We're crossing our fingers that we can make the world understand that it's self-sustaining," Wiener said of urban farming. "It's not just kids playing in the ground with potatoes. It's much more of an economic system that we're trying to build."

Agriculture

Just what is this CSA business?

A CSA (community-supported agriculture) is when people pay up front for a farm share from a farmer, and then every week, get a box full of fresh vegetables and produce grown locally.

The food is similar to what you get at a farmers market. But by paying ahead of time for a season's worth of produce, you help provide a financial baseline to the farmer.

It's a way to not only eat healthy, but to support local farming and agriculture.

Quoted

"CSAs are great, but sometimes it's like, 'I don't know what the heck I'm doing!' We're able to provide info about specific crops, but also sometimes say, 'OK, you stick to potatoes.'" Baird

Meningitis strain called 'unusual'

Stop. Since treating an unusual strain, no new cases have been found at Princeton.

Judith A. O'Donnell, chief of infectious diseases at Penn-Presbyterian Medical Center, said the specific and uncommon type of the meningitis strain that killed a Drexel engineering student isn't fought by the typical inoculation.

A Centers for Disease Control and Prevention report issued Tuesday found that the same strain of a meningitis bacterial infection that killed a Drexel University sophomore last week also infected close to 10 others at Princeton University last year.

Princeton officials said 19-year-old Stephanie Ross had been in contact with Princeton students who visited a party in the city a week before she fell ill.

"The reason why it's of concern, is because the last few years, there has been recommendations to vaccinate adolescents and college-age young people against meningitis," she said, "but the vaccine doesn't cover this particularly unusual strain."

Be careful, O'Donnell said. "While the college students are generally vaccinated against the other strains, they can still be susceptible to this strain."

How it's spread

At any given time, about 10 percent of the population carries the bacteria that causes meningitis. Carriers can still spread it without being affected by it.

- It's spread through close, direct contact, especially if you live in close quarters with other people, such as in military barracks or college dorms.
- It could also be spread through kissing and sexual contact or through shared utensils.

Shooting victim tried to use bus as an ambulance

Injured. The man tried to board two SEPTA buses before emergency workers helped him.

A Southwest Philadelphia man tried to use a SEPTA bus as an ambulance early Wednesday morning.

The man, suffering from a gunshot wound, tried to catch a ride to the hospital around 7 a.m., officials said.

Police spokeswoman Jillian Russell said the 31-year-old man, whose identity has not yet been released, was shot in the right thigh on the 700 block of south 57th Street.

SEPTA spokeswoman Heather Redfern said after the shooting, the man made his way to 58th Street and Baltimore Avenue and boarded the southbound Route G bus.

He told the bus driver he was shot, but instead of taking a seat, he got off, Redfern said.

She said he then crossed the street and boarded a northbound bus, which was headed to Lankenau Medical Center on the Main Line.

The operator of the first bus alerted SEPTA authorities, who stopped the second bus two blocks after the injured man boarded.

Hospitalized

Emergency officials went to the scene to take the injured man to the hospital.

- He was last listed in stable condition at The Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania.

Redfern said she isn't sure if there were any bloodstains left on either bus. She said she's not sure if there is a protocol in case an injured passenger boards.

The United States warned Moscow on Wednesday that it was on a "dark path" to isolation after Russian troops backed by unarmed volunteers stormed Ukraine's naval headquarters in the Crimean port of Sevastopol and raised their flag.

The dramatic seizure came as Russia and the West dug in for a long confrontation over Moscow's annexation of Crimea, with the United States and Europe groping for ways to increase pressure on a defiant Russian President Vladimir Putin.

Biden was in the Lithuanian capital Vilnius, part of a quick trip to reassure Baltic allies worried about what an emboldened, aggressive Russia might mean for their nations.

Lithuania, along with Estonia and Latvia, are NATO members.

"There is an attempt, using brutal force, to redraw borders of the European states and to destroy the post-war architecture of Europe," Lithuanian President Dalia Grybauskaite said.

The United Nations said Secretary General Ban Ki-Moon will push for a peaceful solution to the crisis when he meets Putin in Moscow today and when he travels to Kiev on Friday.

Russian lawmakers raced to ratify a treaty making the Ukrainian region part of Russia by the end of the week, despite threats of further sanctions from Washington and Brussels.

The Russian military moved swiftly to neutralize any threat of armed resistance in Crimea.

"This morning they stormed the compound. They cut the gates open, but I heard no shooting," said Oleksander Balanyuk, a captain in the navy, exiting the compound. "This thing should have been solved politically." REUTERS

Social dis-ease

Do you 'like' how I look?

Social media that emphasizes sharing and commenting on photos and other images may feed the anxieties of young women with eating disorders, according to researchers. In experiments with a group of female college students, those who logged into their Facebook accounts were more likely to worry about their weight and body shape afterward, compared to women who read online articles about a neutral topic. For those working on treatment and prevention of eating disorders, the effects of spending time on Facebook may be a factor to take into account, the study team suggests.

"We've done research on peer influences in other contexts — this is the first time we've looked at social media use," Pamela Keel said. REUTERS

Medical conspiracies believed by many

See more at www.metro.us

Ill at ease. Half of Americans buy into theories about medical cabals.

About half of American adults believe in at least one medical conspiracy theory, according to new survey results. But some theories have more traction than others.

For example, three times as many people believe U.S. regulators prevent people from getting natural cures as believe that a U.S. spy agency infected a large number of African Americans with the human immunodeficiency virus.

J. Eric Oliver, the study's lead author from University of Chicago, said people may believe in conspiracy theories because they're easier to understand than complex information.

"To talk about epidemiology and probability theories is difficult to understand as opposed to, 'If you put this substance in your body, it's going to be bad,'" Oliver said.

For the new study, he and his colleague used data from 1,351 adults who answered an online survey in 2013. The data were then weighted to represent the U.S. population.

The participants read six popular medical conspiracy theories and then indicated whether they had heard of them and whether they agreed or disagreed with them.

Like the theories about conspiracies to infect African-Americans with HIV and to prevent citizens from accessing alternative medicines, the other theories on the list had mistrust of government and large organizations as themes. REUTERS

Is the government insinuating itself between you and your all-natural cures? The truth is out there, say many. / GETTY IMAGES

Quoted

"Science in general — medicine in particular — is complicated and cognitively challenging, because you have to carry around a lot of uncertainty." Oliver

By the numbers

Some 49 percent of the survey participants agreed with at least one of the conspiracies.

37%

In addition to the 37 percent of respondents who fully agreed that U.S. regulators are suppressing access to natural cures, less than a third were willing to say they actively disagreed with the theory.

Reluctant

Overall, the researchers say people who believed in conspiracies were more likely to use alternative medicine and to avoid traditional medicine. Oliver said the findings may have implications for doctors.

- Instead of viewing patients who believe in conspiracy theories as crazy, he said doctors should realize those patients may be less likely to follow a prescription regimen.
- "It's important to increase information about health and science to the public," he said. "I think scientific thinking is not a very intuitive way to see the world."

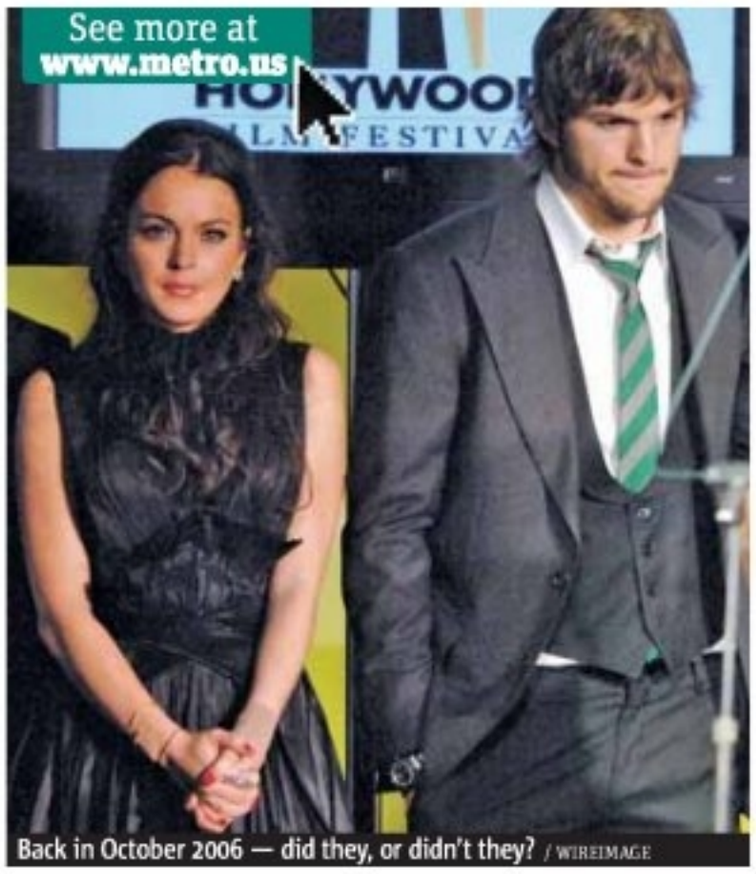
Everyone! Important news! More names on Lindsay Lohan's sex list have been revealed! And yes, you will want to know who they are.

Earlier in the month, I told you about In Touch's "world exclusive" report, in which the mag somehow got hold of Lohan's handwritten conquest list. Heath Ledger, Adam Levine, Zac Efron, Justin Timberlake, Joaquin Phoenix, Colin Farrell, Evan Peters, Wilmer Valderrama, and Jamie Dornan all made the cut, for better or worse. However, some of the names were blanked out for what everyone assumed were legal reasons — but now we know it was just a clever way for In Touch to drag the story out for as long as possible.



Back in October 2006 — did they, or didn't they? / WIREIMAGE

The new round of names include Ashton Kutcher, Orlando Bloom, Benicio Del Toro, Ryan Phillippe, rugby player Danny Cipriani, NHL player Aaron Voros and director Josh Mond.

So, there you go. Everyone famous who Lindsay Lohan has had sex with. The only person missing from the list is Danny DeVito. And at this point, he probably wasn't on the list because she couldn't figure out how to spell "DeVito."

Talking points

M.I.A.'s huge NFL fine

Rapper M.I.A.'s feud with the NFL isn't going away, as the sports league has apparently been after her for two years to pay a $1.5 million fine for flipping the bird during the 2012 halftime show, according to the Hollywood Reporter. On top of that, the NFL is apparently looking for an additional $15.1 million in "restitution" because of how much exposure the stunt garnered M.I.A. The NFL maintains that her stunt was a "flagrant disregard for the values that form the cornerstone of the NFL brand and the Super Bowl," a charge her legal team finds laughable. "The claim for restitution lacks any basis in law, fact or logic," her rep says. "The continued pursuit of this proceeding is transparently an exercise by the NFL intended to bully and make an example of [M.I.A.] for daring to challenge the NFL." The rapper at least has a sense of humor about it, asking fellow halftime performer Madonna if she can borrow $16 million in a tweet that was later deleted.

SUPER BOWL 2012

Diversity. Philly Queer Media marries arts to activism

Philly Queer Media's second annual Media Activism Series will showcase a wide variety of work by Philadelphia artists with one thing in common: an interest in using art in the service of social change. Filmmakers, authors, performance artists, even a circus and dance troupe — the work itself is wide-ranging and multifaceted, but the goals of the work are united.

"All of these artists, activists and scholars use the stage in different ways," says founder and director Cathy Hannabach, "but are all interested in the way that live performance can be used to interrogate gender, sexuality and racial and class politics."

This year's series includes a screening of director Che Gossett's documentary about Asian-American AIDS activist Kiyoshi Kuromiya; a circus performance by Tangle Movement Arts; a workshop on drag performance; and a reading by writer and 'zine-maker Sarah Sawyers-Lovett. Each of them, Hannabach says, "is interested in connecting experiences of oppression and violence to broad, large-scale social and political movements that seek a more just and more equitable society."

Philly Queer Media was founded in 2012 to show work at the intersection of queer media arts and queer activism. The Media Activism Series is the central event in the organization's calendar, and Hannabach hopes to reach as large and diverse an audience as possible.

"Philly Queer Media is really committed to accessibility, and we mean that in the broadest way possible," she explains. "Our events are designed to draw different crowds in different neighborhoods of the city, some of whom might already be interested in media, some of whom might already be participants in queer activism, and some of whom might be brand new to either one of those things." SHAUN BRADY

1 'Muppets Most Wanted' The second of the original run of Muppet movies was a caper comedy set overseas, and so is the second of the reboot lot. The Jason Segel-less sequel finds Kermit discovering he has a criminal doppelganger who robs museums with Ricky Gervais.

2 'Divergent' Perhaps you too can write a YA series that will become a splashy and aggressively promoted would-be film franchise! Veronica Roth's tales of futuristic Chicago teens get no less than Shailene Woodley, plus no less than Kate Winslet as the baddie.

3 'Nymphomaniac: Volume I' It was probably inevitable that incorrigible provocateur Lars Von Trier would make a four-hour sex movie. In part one, Charlotte Gainsbourg plays a super freak who talks about her past shtupping Shia LaBeouf and others. ("Volume II" will be out on April 4.)

4 'Blood Ties' The French crime drama "Rivals" gets its American remake, albeit directed by one of its French stars ("Tell No One" helmer Guillaume Canet). Billy Crudup and Clive Owen play brothers on opposite sides of the law, while Zoe Saldana, Mila Kunis and Marion Cotillard play their ladies.

Is that Kermit the Frog or his Russian master criminal doppelganger with a sinister mole, in "Muppets Most Wanted?" / DISNEY

5 'Bad Words' Jason Bateman steps behind the camera in this dark comedy, in which he also plays a 40-year-old who exploits a loophole in spelling bee rules and starts clobbering junior geniuses at competitions.

6 'Particle Fever' If the rebooted "Cosmos" has left you hankering for more science awesomeness, check this documentary that sits on the testing of the Large Hadron Collider, which last year tested out the existence of the so-called "God Particle." Science!

7 'Bethlehem' Another film (after "Omar") from the Israeli-Palestinian front, this drama centers on the relationship between an Israeli Secret Service officer and his teenage Palestinian informant.

4 minutes with four Brooklyn designers

Style. We catch up with four rising stars at Brooklyn Fashion Week, including a pet couturist!

SHAWN PUNCH

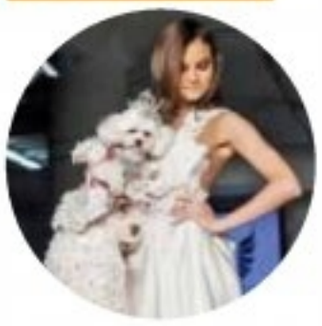
Collection: Richard Fitz

Richard Fitz

Age & Hometown: 22, Johannesburg, South Africa.
How he got his start: Fitz received his fashion degree at Leaders in the Science of Fashion (LISOF) in Johannesburg and has been working in the industry for the past three years.
Favorite Piece: "I love the jacket-dress. It's made of raw wool and was hand-felted to mold onto the body without any seams at all."
Favorite fall trend: "I think a big trend is moving away from figure-hugging forms and leaning more toward statement pieces that don't necessarily fit tightly or hug the body."

COLLEEN GWEN ARMSTRONG

Collection: Bandit



Anthony Rubio

Age & Hometown: "Let's just say I'm over 40," Rubio, who is from New York, says.
How he got his start: Rubio studied at the Fashion Institute of Technology and uses his know-how to design pet couture, and has been featured on the "Today Show."
Favorite piece: "I love the finale gown, which has thousands of Swarovski crystals and is set in three-dimensional silk with chiffon flowers. It's hand sewn onto a combination of five fabrics."
Favorite fall trend: "Rich colors in wools and tweeds trimmed in metallic leather or faux fur will be the trend."

YONI LEVI

Collection: Lady Pearl

Kouassi Norbert Akou

Age & Hometown: 25, Abidjan, Ivory Coast.
How he got his start: Akou attended Esmod Fashion School in Paris, which is when his passion for fashion really took off.
What inspired the line: Inspired by the women of each ethnic group in Africa, every dress is named after a common woman from each African group to represent the women of that region.
Favorite piece: "My favorite piece is the feathered dress."
Favorite fall trend: "I don't care so much about what I wear, but I love bags. I have so many!"

SHAWN PUNCH

Collection: G.Leon

Alicia Pickney

Age & Hometown: 23, Philadelphia.
How she got her start: Pickney attended Philadelphia University for fashion design, but started sewing when she was 13. She's one of the youngest to premiere at Brooklyn Fashion Week.
Favorite piece: "My patterned trench coat with leather accents and my overalls are my favorite."
Favorite fall trend: "My go-to trends in the fall are neutrals and socks. ... I either wear thigh-highs or layered socks."

Wine Week.

Hops get a little competition in this beer-lovin' town.

Swirl it around

Step aside, heavy reds. Jet Wine Bar is breaking out the rosés for spring. / PROVIDED

Philly gets tons of local and national praise as a top-notch beer town. But wine? Completely overlooked.

Kate Moroney, general manager and wine director at Vintage Wine Bar (129 S. 13th St.), and Bill Eccleston, general manager and wine director at Ristorante Panorama (Front and Market streets), decided it was time to change that. This Sunday kicks off their vino brainchild: the first-ever Philly Wine Week. More than 20 restaurants are slated to participate with wine-related events, tastings and menus.

While there will be educational aspects to Philly Wine Week, the mood will remain light. "People feel like you need special access [to wine]," explains Eccleston. "We're trying to bring wine to the people with a lot of different opportunities and price points. It'll be fun and informal."

Pair wine with charcuterie at Zavino. / PROVIDED

Over at Zavino (112 S. 13th St.) you'll find a weeklong rendition of the restaurant's Premium Pour Program. "We've been doing the program for a couple of years," says general manager Jason Brooke. "This is when we open bottles that are a couple hundred dollars and offer [them] by the glass. We're looking for some fun, cool wines that we haven't seen for a while." Pours come in 1-, 3- and 6-ounce options.

"I've had this idea in my head for a while," Moroney of Vintage says. "I love beer and cocktails, but my first love is wine." She notes that when she first mentioned this idea to Eccleston, it seemed farfetched. "He said, 'I think you're crazy but I think it's an awesome idea.'" And yet, here we are. To kick things off Sunday, Panorama is hosting Bubbles and Barrels, Philly Wine Week's opening event.

Rosé rules

The experts weigh in on what to drink this spring.

- Bill Eccleston: I always love sparkling themes – as you can tell by Bubbles and Barrels as the opening party. It's a great time for anything lively, cool and bright. And it's time to drink rosé again.
- Jill Weber: Everyone's been drinking heavy reds all winter, so it's fun to do white again. Any of those wines that are clean and crisp are great. And obviously rosé for this time of year.
- Erin Miller (manager at the new Zavino in University City): I love anything light and zippy right now. White blends from northern Italy are great. And rosé season is upon us, which I'm always excited about.
- Kate Moroney: Rosés are just the definition of spring. I'm sure everyone's saying that, but it's not by chance.

Pairings

Jet Wine Bar

Jet Wine Bar (1525 South St.) will pair wine with soft pretzels and regional cheeses during lunch. Owner Jill Weber says Wine Week is similar to Beer Week. "This week is about getting people to understand why wine can be fun," she says. "Wine can be cheap, it can be expensive, and it can be fun. Everything that food and beer is, wine is."

Tips. Here's what your child needs for sleep-away camp

It seems like your kids need 150 things when they're going to sleep-away camp, but we've made a list to help keep it simple. Use this list as a general guide while also noting what's on the checklist for the specific camp your child is going to.

Clothes: Glasses or contacts (and cleaning solution), sunglasses, jacket, jeans, swimsuit, shorts, sweatshirt, T-shirts, underwear, pajamas, bathrobe, flip flops, several athletic sneakers, socks, sandals, hat.

Kitchen: Cutlery, reusable water bottle.

Camp stuff: Cards, flashlight, batteries, books, compass, backpack, swimming goggles, bedding (sleeping bag, sheets, pillow case, blanket, pillow, mattress pad).

Toiletries: Prescription medication, sun block, deodorant, shampoo and conditioner, lip balm, toothbrush and toothpaste, beach towels (for swimming and shower), hand towels, tissues, small mirror, nail clipper, brush, insect repellent, washcloths, first aid kit.

Personal stuff: Laundry bag, camera, spending money, paper, pre-addressed envelopes, stamps, family photo, teddy bear, musical instrument, calling card or cell phone.

When you pack

Let your child help

It's a good idea to do the packing with your child. That way he or she knows where everything is and will be able to find it easily.

Don't bring

Different camps have different rules. There might be a limit on how much spending money he or she can bring. Also, cell phones and other electronics are often not allowed.

Food allergies

Make sure you let the summer camp know if your child has any food allergies. LASSE KRISTIANSEN

Horoscope

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. Be sure to take extra care while en route to a destination. With encouragement on your part, a current companion will turn into a romantic partner.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. Spend an enjoyable time with friends, relatives and family. Good fortune is within reach. Make home improvements.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Networking can bring positive results. You will be well-regarded if you join an organization whose principles reflect your beliefs.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. An incomplete project will be distracting. Share any problems you face with a colleague; asking for help is not a sign of weakness.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. Love and romance are in the stars. Consider a change of scenery. Participating in a new activity will have some surprising results.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. Inactivity is your enemy. Make an effort to go out or find an interesting event in your community. The busier you are, the more energized you will feel.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. It's vital to include some self-promotion in your dealings. When others are aware of your innovative views, they will contribute.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. Your abilities will be showcased if you are able to combine business with pleasure. Others will be inspired by your resourcefulness.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan 20. There is a world of opportunity open to you, so don't feel trapped in your current situation. Make yourself aware of the many possibilities available.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb 18. If you are feeling unfulfilled, assess your current situation realistically, and prepare to make some changes. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

It's time to use your words, US

I am guessing that the United States is expected to intervene in every squabble going on around the globe, because it is a world power? Well, I looked around the world and found that the good U.S. is at war with many countries or has already finished a war with some countries but stayed there to maintain U.S. presence and the country's stability. I think we should try negotiations more, as wars cost us human lives, money and broken families — not to mention the fatherless-children created through wars. Enough is enough. I say we go green and desist from war at least for the next 30 years.

Why does the transponder have an off switch?

Day after day, we hear investigators tell us they don't know where or how 238 passengers and crew of flight MH370 vanished. I would like a simpler answer: Why is it possible to turn off the transponder, by accident, or with intent, in the first place? Why does a device has an on/off switch in the cockpit?

Giroux dazzles, propels Flyers

NHL. Claude Giroux has the Flyers in playoff contention, as he vies for the Hart Trophy.

Claude Giroux and the Flyers are 5-2-1 since the break. / GETTY IMAGES

Is it possible that Flyers' captain Claude Giroux is underrated?

Sure, he is known around the league as one of the most talented playmakers and on-ice leaders in the game. But ask his teammates about him. They still can't believe how good he is.

"He's been a tremendous leader as of late," Matt Read said, referring to the Flyers' recent stretch of 10-2-1 hockey. "He's the hardest working guy everywhere you go, he's the first one here every day. In his mind it's win win win at all costs, any mistakes we hear it on the bench from him. He expects the best from everybody."

Giroux entered the Flyers' top 20 all-time scoring list with his game-winning goal Tuesday night against the Blackhawks. And it was fitting. The overtime goal was among the most incredible feats of his career.

"We were sitting on the bench and all yelling '10 seconds,'" Read said. "You're watching and not expecting too much. What a great shot that was. It's an emotional win for us after having a great weekend [winning two against Pittsburgh]."

The goal against Chicago almost never happened. Giroux didn't even hit the ice for that final shift until there were less than 20 seconds left in overtime.

"I knew there wasn't very much left after the faceoff," Flyers head coach Craig Berube said. "I was ready to pull my lineup card out for the shootout. He's a determined guy and obviously he felt he had enough time to get down there and take the shot and it was a great shot."

Quoted

"It's fun to watch. He's being a true leader and that's what we need."
Matt Read

Flyers on fire

Team rallies around Giroux's play

Claude Giroux scored a goal and had an assist in a 3-2 win Tuesday and has now posted 13 points in the Flyers' last eight games. And when he scores, Philadelphia not only wins, it wins against top-shelf teams like the Penguins and Blackhawks.

"You can just tell, the passion in his voice he wants it more than ever right now," Matt Read said. "It's fun to be around and witness as a teammate. He's playing good right now and hopefully our team can rally around him."

Giroux is currently fourth in the NHL in scoring (69 points). With his stellar play of late and the Flyers streaking toward a playoff spot, there is buzz around the league that the forward is a top candidate for the Hart Trophy (MVP award).

"He's that skilled," Sean Couturier said. "He finds a way to make those nice plays, there's a reason why he's one of the best in the league this year." EVAN MACY

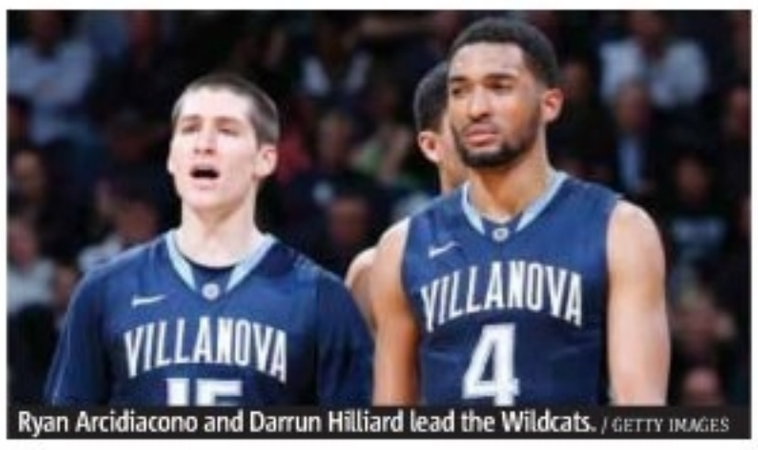
Villanova looks to make NCAA run

NCAA. The No. 2 Wildcats and No. 15 Milwaukee tip off Thursday night.

It will have been an entire week without a basketball game for Villanova when the team takes on Milwaukee in Buffalo as the nightcap Thursday in the NCAA Tournament.

Villanova is one of four teams ranked in the top 20 both offensively and defensively in college basketball. The other three are Louisville, Florida and Wichita State.

In recent history, teams with a balanced attack on both sides of the ball fare better than teams dominant on just one side.



Ryan Arcidiacono and Darrun Hilliard lead the Wildcats. / GETTY IMAGES

Once ranked in the top five in the nation, the Wildcats have a tough matchup awaiting if they advance to the third round, either UConn or St. Joseph's. Both are familiar foes.

"It's pretty crazy to think about," Villanova guard Ryan Arcidiacono told the media after the brackets were revealed Sunday. "UConn and St. Joe's? We have to take it one game at a time. But that would be cool if we play each other."

But first they have to tame a mature and talented Milwaukee squad to move on.

NCAA. St. Joseph's draws a difficult matchup with UConn

The Hawks enter tournament play in an opposite position than their cross-town rivals in Villanova.

St. Joseph's played their way into the tournament with an A-10 championship, and are playing some of the best basketball of the year, right now. They will face No. 7 Connecticut as the No 10 seed in the East in a 6:55 p.m. start in Buffalo on Thursday.

"I don't have any doubt about my team and being set for this stage," St. Joseph's head coach Phil Martelli told CSN. "I might gently let them know this is a Philadelphia doubleheader, and we haven't been a part of one of those."

If the Hawks and Wildcats each win, a third "Holy War" matchup would take place Saturday. If it happens, it would be the second time the two squads ever met in the NCAA tournament. The only other instance was in 1971.

Halil Kanacevic / GETTY IMAGES

The Huskies boast one of the best backcourts in the nation, with Shabazz Napier, the AAC Player of the Year, and Ryan Boatright commanding UConn's offense.

But the Hawks have the A-10 Tournament's most outstanding player in Halil Kanacevic, who will match up with the equally sized, 6-foot-9 Huskies forward DeAndre Daniels in the post. EVAN MACY

Vick on the move

GETTY IMAGES

Jets plan to meet with Eagles' Vick

Michael Vick announced he still intended to start in the NFL, and Friday he has an opportunity to make his case.

The Eagles quarterback has a Friday meeting in the books with the New York Jets, who have Geno Smith returning for his sophomore season but no de facto starter to speak of.

The speedy southpaw started 2013 as the Eagles No. 1 quarterback, but injuries and an incredible year from Nick Foles relegated Vick to the bench for most of the season.

Vick will be 34 at the start of the 2014 season and led the Birds to an NFC East title in 2010.

Vick never started a full 16-game season in Philadelphia during five seasons in green and white. METRO

Rollins staying

ROLLINS HAS THE RIGHT TO VETO ANY TRADE.

Rollins not bothered by trade rumors

After ESPN reported that an anonymous source on the Phillies said veteran short stop Jimmy Rollins needs to lead or be traded, Rollins said he was not really interested in the circulating rumors.

"They can't trade me," Rollins, who has a no trade clause, told the media. "It doesn't matter. I don't care which way it has tried to be twisted or said, if it is exactly how it was said or if it was said, I can't be traded."

The ESPN report also said that Rollins met with Ruben Amaro Jr. on Wednesday.

"Absolute silliness," Amaro told MLB.com when asked about the report. "Jimmy Rollins is our shortstop. One of the ways we're going to be able to win is with Jimmy being Jimmy." METRO

Do you have blockages in your heart arteries?

Are you worried about your risk of having a heart attack?

Doctors at the University of Pennsylvania are launching a research study looking at the effects of a new medication to lower triglycerides, a type of fat in the blood. The entire study lasts about 3 months and may include a screening visit, 2 overnight visits to the research center at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania, up to 5 exercise stress tests, and up to 4 MRI's. Participants will be compensated up to $1800 for their time and effort.

If you are at least 40, and take medication to control your cholesterol, and have a history of heart disease, or have been told you are at a high risk of a future heart attack you may qualify for our research study.
